

For Immediate Release

OneAsia Revamps Corporate Website to Better Serve Customers

Hong Kong, 18 Jun 2013 - OneAsia, the leading cloud solutions provider in Asia today announced that the company has a major revamping of its corporate website to better serve its customers.

The new design aims to help visitors navigate easily through different product categories and simple site architecture. Charles Lee, CEO of OneAsia said, "We completely redesigned the website so that the style is more consistent with our corporate image. What's more, we have further strengthened the content including a wide range of cloud solutions as well as the data centre services, visitors can get a better understanding of our services."

The website provides a new face for OneAsia that provides visitors with product information, case studies, press releases etc. Visitors can also contact OneAsia for free trial or product information by completing the online forms. OneAsia will continue to upgrade its website, and seeks to make it easier than ever to connect with customers.

With an aim to keep customers connected wherever and whenever they are, OneAsia is staying at the forefront of the industry with extensive infrastructure coverage in Greater China, Singapore, Malaysia and Vietnam.

About OneAsia

OneAsia offers a full range of cloud computing solutions, from infrastructure, platform to application software, aiming to help clients to manage its IT budget and resources effectively to meet core business needs.

For more information, please www.oneAs1a.com

For media enquiry, please contact info@oneas1a.com